With the renomination of President Hoover and Vice President Curtis taken for granted, political gossip continues to deal and dally with things transpiring in the Democratic candidatorial field where many interesting developments have occurred during the past week. The announcement of Alfred E. Smith in the Monday papers, reminding everybody that he is the leader of the Democratic party, that he will make the race for president a second time if the party desires, but that he will make no pre-convention campaign for delegates, has been universally interpreted, by friends and foes alike, as official notice that the late governor is out to get the nomination for himself, not merely to "stop Roosevelt." When asked explicitly whether he would interfere with the efforts of his friends to secure Smith delegates the late Governor inquired innocently: "How can I do that?" And how, indeed, can he! Having announced that he will accept the nomination if the party desires, how can he consistently forbid the election of delegates who will vote for him? Specially, how can he say to his friends in North Dakota that they must not list him as a Democratic presidential candidate in their state primary election which is to be held March 15? The fact that the North Dakota State Democratic Convention has previously endorsed Governor Roosevelt was merely an untoward incident, one of those differences of opinion which will arise in the best regulated families. Alfred E. Smith is out to get the Democratic nomination for himself if it can be had.

Adding to the political mirth was the naive statement given out upon the heels of Governor Smith's announcement by the Honorable Jouett Shouse, National Democratic Committee Director, declaring that under no circumstances would he favor any particular candidate that he asked nothing but that all delegates should be sent to the convention uninstructed. Mr. Shouse is no child in politics, but he must deem the Democrats of the country generally to be in the kindergarten class if he thinks they will be unable to penetrate the real purpose underlying his suave declaration of neutrality. To ask for uninstructed delegates has been the plea from time immemorial of those who fear that if delegates were instructed their own purposes would be defeated. To the politically wise, therefore, the statement of Mr. Shouse, following as it did a similar utterance by Chairman Raskob in nothing more than a thinly veiled proclamation of his desire that no more delegates should be pledged to Governor Roosevelt. Everybody knows that Chairman Raskob is an anxious for the renomination of Alfred E. Smith as he was for his first nomination, and that the coming campaign will have no interest for him if another candidate is chosen. Everybody knows that Mr. Shouse sees eye to eye with Mr. Raskob in all things political. Hence the skepticism with which

PROGRAMS ENJOYED
BY RECORD CROWDS

Probably the biggest crowd ever turned out for the Old Settlers and Washington's birthday celebration was in attendance at the all-day affair in Campbell Monday.

Starting Saturday night with a colonial ball which furnished a gay time for a goodly crowd, and with a Sunday recess, the celebration carried through Monday even with never a dull moment. The ball was arranged by W. C. Bohnett S. N. Hedegard and Joseph McKinnon, and presided over by them. Decorations in red, white and blue added to the spirit of the time, and many gorgeous costumes were in evidence. Judging the costumes were Mrs. R. Lear, Joseph McKinnon and D. H. Cramer, who selected as best-dressed woman, Josephine LaBarbera; best-dressed man, Dr. F. R. Anderson; best-dressed couple, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Shadle.

The Monday morning program started off promptly with a band concert at the grammar school. The beauty of the day added much to this feature, as Mr. Thielke's well-trained musicians performed out of doors. A crowd which taxed the capacity of the auditorium applauded the musical program offered by Miss Helen Kalas, Stephen Merrill and Jan Kalas, who were accompanied by Miss Marjorie Johns.

Dr. Oswald McCall of Berkeley, speaker of the day held the crowd easily to the end of the program, which was over shortly after 12 noon. The title of his address was "Silhouette Against the Dawn."

At 1:30 the parade started from the schools, wended its way to the Southern Pacific tracks, and retraced its steps. Several floats, riders, pedestrians, and the high school band were led by a detachment of state highway patrolmen. There was a big hand for the paraders.

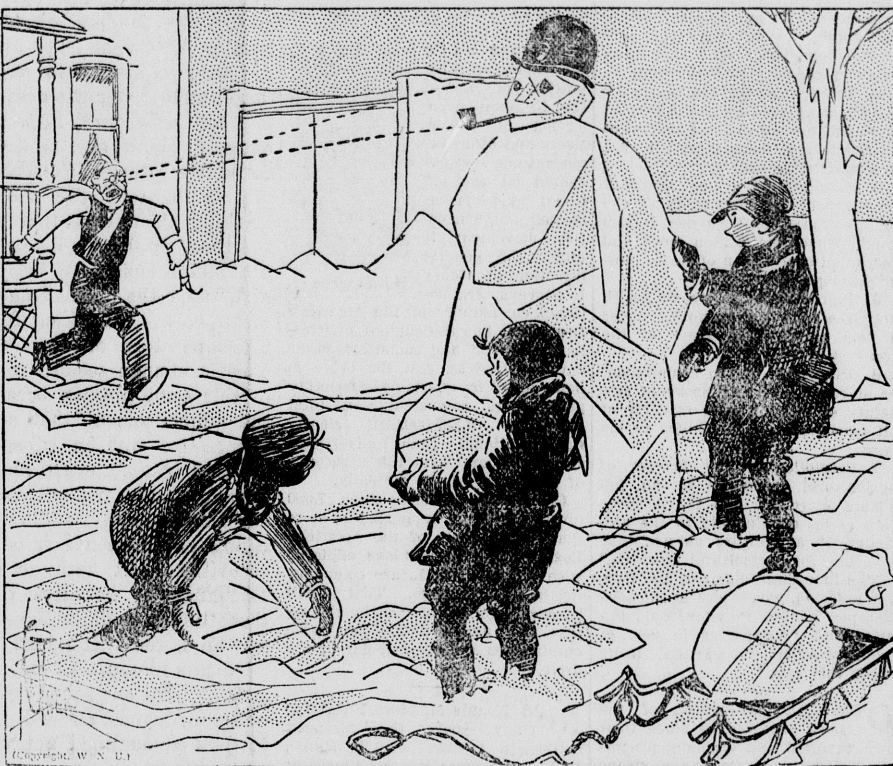

Following the parade a tree planting was held on the grammar school grounds, directly in front of the main entrance. A redwood tree was set out in memory of George Washington, William Sherman, police commissioner of San Francisco and past master of California Masons, delivered the dedicatory address.

A ball game in which the Ferro's All-Stars won over Walter's Cards of Palo Alto by a 14-4 score entertained the ball fans after the tree planting, while a reception-tea was in progress for old settlers at the grammar school.

The evening program was presented to a capacity crowd at the grammar school auditorium. The first on the program was a Chinese Fantasy in three acts by the grammar school pupils under the supervision of Miss Adele Grandeman, who was also the author of the fantasy "The Bringer of the Bells." The cast included: Jewell Abbott, Alice Modry, Lois Bohnett, Jimmy Rambo, Ernest Feice, Geraldine Jurras, Frank Covey, and Jeanette Abbott, Principles; Geraldine Lloyd, Mary Louise

DAIRY MEN TO HOLD
SAN JOSE MEETING
ON FRIDAY, FEB. 26

Marketing of dairy products will be the theme of discussions at the meeting of California Dairy Council in San Jose, February 26, when dairy farmers, manufacturers and distributors from all sections of the State will be in attendance. The sessions of the meeting, which will be open to all who are interested will be held in the quarters of the San Jose Chamber of Commerce, beginning at 9:30 a. m.

On the speakers' list are Mr. M. D. Munn, Chicago, President of National Dairy Council; Dr. Theodore Macklin, Chief, Division of Markets, California Department of Agriculture; Dr. Walter H. Brown, Professor of Hygiene, Leland Stanford University and Mr. Walter Backrott, San Jose Superintendent of Schools.

There has been an increase in dairy production in the United States, according to Sam H. Greene, secretary of California Dairy Council. In 1925, dairying represented 14.5 per cent of all farm income. This now has increased to 20 per cent. And the problem of the dairy farmer is to raise the line of per capita consumption to keep pace with the line of production.

Young Local
Student Wins County
Declamatory Contest

Miss Geraldine Jurras, 10-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Jurras, is the winner of the pearl medal given by the W. C. T. U. at a declamatory contest held in San Jose last week.

Miss Jurras has won three medals in such contests, her first being won at the age of six years. She is a student at the Campbell Union grammar school and is in the low seventh grade. Her selection which won the prize was "The Making of Our Country's Flag." She competed with five other representatives of Santa Clara county schools.

MRS. S. M. KING

BRIDGE THURS.

Mrs. S. M. King entertained the members of her bridge club Thursday evening at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Smith on second street.

Following the bridge game a delicious lunch was served at one large table. Mrs. King carried out a green and yellow color combination for her decoration. A yellow satin cloth covered the table and green candle holds with yellow tapers and yellow daffodils in a green bowl were used effectively. Novel score cards were used. Mr. C. T. Fawcett, grandfather of the hostess, made jig saw puzzles, two of which matched and the players having the two were partners at the beginning of the game. Miss Clare Baggs was the winner of the first prize and Mrs. Ruth Eddlemon, second.

Those present were Mrs. Ruth Eddlemon, Miss Rawena Farman, Mrs. Anita Russell, Mrs. Helen Gould Neville, Miss Lee Rhodes, Miss Clare Baggs and Miss Helen Hattborn of San Jose and the hostess.

RULES AND DANGERS ARE STRESSED FOR
KITE-FLYING SEASON

Kite-flying season is almost here again, with its days of keen sport for boys and girls. To mothers, too, it is a tremendously important time, since it brings to them the responsibility of thoroughly advising children as the perils involved and thus safeguarding them against accidents. For, while kite-flying is a fine healthful sport when kites are properly made and flown, mishaps or injuries are likely unless the youngsters take certain precautions. Here are some rules that parents would do well to drill into the minds of the young enthusiasts:

Do not fly your kite near light, telephone or trolley wires or near high-tension transmission towers.

Do not use wire of tinsel twine of any sort. Use only cotton string. And don't forget that even wet cord is also a conductor of electricity and will cause as much damage as wire if brought into contact with electric wires.

Do not use a kite with metal ribs.

Do not run across public highways while flying a kite.

Fly your kite in open, unobstructed places away from traffic.

Do not attempt to climb poles or knock down entangled kites with stones.

Do not let your kite go over radio aerials. Incidentally, aerials should not be erected close to electric wires.

Do not let your kite get away from you. Serious injury to you and serious damage to property are likely if you do.

A Washington program was held last Friday afternoon at the Cambrian school. The performance was under the direction of Mrs. Keesling, the principal. Included in the program were selections by the school orchestra, two colonial playlets, a minuet, verse speaking choir, and a debate.

PRESIDENT HOOVER
SUBJECT OF TALK AT
WOMEN'S CLUB MEET

A group of Campbell women attended the meeting Thursday at the Saratoga Foothill club house, sponsored by the Saratoga branch of the Santa Clara County Women's Hoover for President Club.

Dr. Annie T. Lyle of San Francisco was the speaker of the afternoon and her talk was most enlightening and inspiring as she has recently returned from a three months stay in Washington, D. C.

In an interesting survey entitled "Problems of the Presidents" Dr. Lyle said:

"Hoover is the man upon whose shoulders all the nations of the world want to place their burdens and look to him for instruction and help. You all remember the picture of Atlas, with the world supported on his shoulders. That is a picture of Herbert Hoover today with the world on his shoulders, doing everything he can to bear the burden. We should do everything we can to help him."

"Never before have world conditions made the nations so interdependent, and never before have the world's problems been presented to one person as they have been to Herbert Hoover. Washington had his problem, that of uniting the colonies. Lincoln had the problem of keeping all the states in this great nation together. The world admits now that Lincoln was a great man, but few men have come in for as much slander and criticism as he did. Woodrow Wilson had the problem of the great war, but he did not have to deal with the psychological condition caused by a depression in addition. Herbert Hoover, however, has to face the "pay day" of the world after years

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Japan Rebuked by League Council, but Still Persistent —President Hoover Asks Congress for Reorganization of Government.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

JAPAN during the week seemed to be getting deeper and deeper into the morass of international trouble, but gave no outward sign of weakening in her determination to subdue the Chinese. Having received a report from its investigators at Shanghai, placing the onus of the hostilities on Japan, the council of the League of Nations got its dander up and sent to Tokyo a sharp note calling attention to Japan's obligations under various treaties and the league covenant, reminding her of her high position among the powers and appealing to her to cease the warfare against China. The decision to send this rebuke was reached in the absence of the Japanese and Chinese representatives and over the protest of Germany and Jugoslavia. It was signed by the "committee of twelve" and thus a loophole was provided in case it is not backed up by the league assembly later. The communication took the same stand taken by Secretary of States Stimson, that the validity of Japanese occupation of Chinese territory could not be recognized.

Mr. Stimson formulated another stern protest against the use of the international settlement in Shanghai as a base for military operations, and declined to be impressed by Japan's argument that the other powers also had landed troops there. He told Ambassador Debutchi that if the Chinese should enter or fire on the settlement on any pretext while Japanese forces were utilizing it as a military base, the United States would hold Japan responsible.

In preparation for a grand offensive the Japanese heavily shelled the Chinese lines, and many shells fell in the international settlement. Two English sailors were killed. This caused great excitement in London. A special meeting of the cabinet was called at once and Prime Minister MacDonald left a nursing home to preside over it. American marines also were endangered by the rain of shells, but there were no casualties among them.

AUTHORIZED by his government, the Japanese minister to China served an ultimatum on Gen. Tsi Tingkal, commander of the Nineteenth Chinese route army, demanding that the Chinese retire twenty kilometers from Shanghai and threatening to drive them away by force should they not comply. There were evidences that the Japanese were growing anxious about the great concentration of the Chinese troops and feared that Gen. Chiang Kai-shek would bring his national guard divisions to the aid of Shanghai's defenders and take command of the entire army. Minister of War Araki asked Emperor Hirohito to approve the cabinet's plan to send 30,000 to 45,000 fresh troops to Shanghai if the Chinese continue their resistance.

For the third time American Consul General Cunningham had to protest against a raid of Japanese plain clothes men on the middle school of the American Methodist Church, South. The furniture was smashed, books and papers scattered about, and an American flag nailed on the outer wall was torn down. Other Japanese civilians assaulted American Vice Consul Arthur Ringwalt and an American woman he was helping out of the bombed district. For this outrage Tokyo apologized.

PRESIDENT Hoover on Wednesday sent to congress a special message asking support for a reorganization of the government and recommending the creation of four new federal offices. He requested, simultaneously, the major alteration and changing in title of four other federal departments. Under the eight new and altered divisions he would consolidate present overlapping activities in an effort to subtract "millions of dollars annually" from the tax burden.

Authority also was asked for the Chief Executive to transfer and consolidate executive and administrative groups merely through the issuance of executive orders, each to be before congress for 60 days before coming effective. Specifically, the President suggested:

1. Consolidation of the millions of dollars' worth of construction work undertaken annually by the various federal departments into a new office to be known as public works administrator.

2. Incorporation of the vast amount of personnel administration into one office headed by a "personnel administrator," with the civil service commission remaining in an advisory capacity to that agent.

3. Transfer of the administrative functions of running the American merchant marine to the Department of Commerce under direction of a new assistant secretary.

4. Creation of a new assistant secretaryship of interior in charge of "conservation," under whom would come reclamation work and the broad supervision of water power development.

5. Placement of all public health activities of the government under a new assistant secretary of the treasury.

6. Promotion of the commissioner of education to an assistant secretary of interior, with transfer of all educational undertakings to his care.

7. Promotion of the director of agricultural economics to an assistant secretary, and the designation of an existing aid to the secretary of agriculture as assistant secretary for agricultural research.

The immediate changes, Mr. Hoover asserted, would cost about $40,000 per annum in additional salaries, but "the saving in cost of administration would be many times this sum."

DEMOCRATIC leaders of the house prepared to place their own taxation and economy proposals before the nation as a means of balancing the national budget.

Following the declaration of Speaker Garner that President Hoover had failed to promote real economy, Representative Rainey of Illinois, Democratic leader, characterized the treasury tax proposals as "woefully insufficient."

The first step in the economy program was the creation of a special committee to study means of abolishing and restricting government bureaus to cut expenses.

The house ways and means committee met to consider the treasury's additional tax program, which included a 1-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax and a 7 per cent tax on domestic electric light and gas bills. Rainey said:

"The treasury originally recommended taxes totaling $920,000,000 and then admitted a mistake of over $400,000,000, and came back with a request to raise the total."

"The treasury, even in its new estimates, does not take into consideration expenses incident to the $500,000,000 reconstruction corporation, $125,000,000 land bank bill, possible direct relief funds of veterans' bills, and will not even estimate the increased interest on the national debt."

BY A vote of 35 to 48 the senate defeated the La Follette-Costigan bill to provide $750,000,000 from the federal treasury to the states for the relief of the jobless and needy, of which sum $375,000,000 was to be handed the states for highway building. Party lines were broken, and the "progressive" bloc was the only group that voted solidly for the measure. Sixteen regular Democrats and six regular Republicans joined with them in its support.

This being out of the way, the senate took up the Glass-Steagall bill to liberalize the federal reserve structure and release a fresh flood of credit throughout the national banking system. This measure had passed through the house with little trouble and it was expected the senate would soon give its approval.

IN SELECTING a successor to Oliver Wendell Holmes on the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States, President Hoover set aside geographical considerations and chose Benjamin Nathan Cardozo, chief justice of the New York state court of appeals.

The nomination was sent to the senate and early confirmation was expected, though several protests were received by Senator Norris, chairman of the judiciary committee. This appointment gives the Supreme court five Republicans and four Democrats, and nine of the justices are from the eastern states. It had been expected that a westerner would be named. Judge Cardozo was recommended by various groups describing themselves as liberals, and his choice for the high honor was praised by senators of such diverse affiliations as Norris of Nebraska, Reed of Pennsylvania, Watson of Indiana and Wagner of New York.

PIERRE LAVAL, losing a vote of confidence in parliament, resigned as premier of France together with his cabinet. Paul Painleve, former premier, consented to try to form a new government.

JOBS for a million unemployed within thirty days is the highly laudable objective of a nation-wide campaign which the American Legion has started in co-operation with the American Federation of Labor, the National Association of Advertisers and other organizations represented on the national employment commission. The entire movement is under the general direction of Henry L. Stevens, Jr., national commander of the American Legion. It has the support of President Hoover and countless other national leaders, and the drive is being aided by magazines and other publications commanding a total circulation of 35,000,000. Nearly sixty national radio advertisers agreed to contribute thirty seconds of their time on the air daily.

Committees in more than 7,000 towns and cities, supported by more than 10,000 posts of the American Legion and 30,000 unions affiliated with the A. F. of L. are co-operating in the campaign. That it will be successful is forecast by the report that nearly 25,000 jobs were obtained on the opening day of the drive.

MRS. Minnie Mattern Fiske, for many years the foremost actress in America, died in Hollis, L. I., after three months' illness at the age of sixty-seven years. For half a century she had greatly entertained the people of the nation, and her passing was as greatly mourned.

SPEAKER JOHN N. GARNER'S big western hat is still on his head, but his friends have started his boom for the Presidential nomination by the Democratic national convention. The two senators from Texas, Morris Sheppard and Tom Connally, issued a formal statement in which Mr. Garner was presented not only as his state's favorite son, but as a statesman fully qualified to be the chief of the nation.

They promised that he would get the full vote of the Texas delegation and would have the support of countless other Democrats over the country when the nation knows more of his character and services.

"He has been speaker of the house for only a few weeks," said the Texas senators. "During that period the house under his leadership has attracted the attention of the whole country by reason of its prompt, thorough and statesmanlike conduct of its affairs. His record as speaker and leader is among the highest proofs of his splendid qualities of leadership and courage."

They recalled his twenty-nine years in the house as a representative from Texas as service "distinguished for its breadth of vision, its political courage and its rugged and aggressive democracy."

Mr. Garner said he had known nothing of the statement before-hand and had no authorized spokesman. He refused to talk of his Presidential chances.

TEWFIK RUSHDY BEY, foreign minister of Turkey, seems to be one of the most optimistic of the delegates to the disarmament conference in Geneva. After the apparently irreconcilable views of the great powers had been presented the Turk arose and told the conference that the political importance of frontiers will soon be negated by fraternization among nations, which, he said, is the surest means of arriving at disarmament. Turkey, he said, has been aiming at understandings with her neighbor nations, but opposed any kind of alliances except one—an alliance among all nations against war.

He supported the French proposal for internationalizing civil aviation and urged prohibiting the manufacture of offensive weapons.

Germany's proposals were submitted Thursday. They included abolition of all air armaments, destruction of air reserves of stocks, abolition of conscription, prohibition of heavy artillery and tanks, limitation of the size of warships and prohibition of aircraft carriers and submarines.

The views of a score of minor powers were laid before the delegates.

Turning from politics to statesmanship, the outstanding event of the week has been the introduction in both houses of Congress of an identical bill for the emergency extension of credit by means of broadening the credit base in reserve banks, proposed by President Hoover and agreed to by the leaders of both parties. The plan is to open the reserve system to paper not eligible under the present law for rediscount, although entirely sound and well secured. Secretary of the Treasury Mills told the House Banking Committee that the bill theoretically "will release ten billion dollars of credit" and "start the upward movement we are all looking for." The operators on the New York exchange seemed to be of this same opinion because the announcement that such a measure was in prospect resulted in an upward movement of stocks not witnessed for many months, adding an estimated aggregate value of securities dealt with on the Exchange of not less than three billion dollars. Bankers of the highest standard regard this measure as entirely safe, based on sound principles of finance, and will give it their unqualified approval and support.

Lincoln Day seems to have been more generally observed throughout the country than ever before and many important speeches were made. Among them the address by President Hoover spoken into the radio over a nation-wide hookup was the most important not only because it was the President speaking, but because of what he said. The heart of his speech was his reference to the difficulties that confronted Lincoln and his comparison of the crisis that then existed with that which confronts us at the present time. And just as the Nation survived the perils of civil strife and arose from the war with the Nation revitalized and the people inspired with a new purpose so "while we are in the midst of the difficulties of this day we may well entertain the feeling that history will regard this period as one of the most difficult in its stress and strain upon the timbers of the Republic that has been experienced since Lincoln's time. But I am confident of the resources, the power and the courage of our people to triumph over any national difficulty. They are rallying to their responsibilities. They are thus doing more than solve their immediate needs. They are buttressing the very foundations of self-government. They are defending the very principles of liberty and freedom. They are showing the patience and steadfastness of Abraham Lincoln."

Mrs. Lillian Ohlen, district deputy president of the Rebekah lodge and her marshal, Josephine LaBarbera, made an official visit to the Saratoga lodge last night, and will pay another official visit to the Hesperian lodge in Los Gatos Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Campbell of Berkeley were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Henry Campbell over the holidays.

CREAM SEPARATORS

OPERATION of an electrically driven cream separator is so simple that even a child can run it. There's no hard work. Just plug the electric cord into a wall outlet or lamp socket, push a button, and a tiny electric motor drives the separator for as long as you wish. Easy operation such as this gives freedom from hours of back-straining work.

The motor uses no more electricity than an average size light globe. Valuable milking time is not wasted in operating the separator, for it requires no attention. The hours of labor saved by this method mean dollars in your pocket.

In addition, the electric motor maintains a constant and unchangeable speed in the separator bowl. The result is less butterfat in the skim milk and more in the cream. Increased butterfat in your marketable cream also results in increased dairy profits.

And, since there is a better market for cream than for whole milk, dairymen are further increasing profits by separating whole milk, selling the cream, and feeding the skim milk to calves, hogs, and poultry.

If you want to increase your dairy profits, it will be worth your while to use electric cream separators as others are doing. Our Rural Power Representative will be glad to call on you and give you further information. You may get in touch with him through our nearest office.

A Taste of Sunshine

SUNSHINE is always beneficial. Try to have a taste of it in the foods which you serve these days, still winter days. Sun-ripened pineapple is extremely well with vegetables and carries into the combination some of the benefits of that tropical sunshine which people nowadays frequently travel many hundreds of miles to enjoy. Here are two recipes in which it is combined with tomatoes—the most popular canned fruit with a succulent fresh vegetable. Try these out on your kitchen stove.

Sautéed Pineapple and Tomatoes: Drain slices of Hawaiian pineapple. Salt and pepper ripe tomato slices, having the same number of each. Sauté separately in a little hot fat. Lay a tomato on each slice of pineapple, and serve around the meat plates.

Tomatoes Stuffed with Pineapple: Cut the tops off four even sized ripe tomatoes, scoop out, and drain well. To the pulp add the drained contents of an 8-ounce can of crushed pineapple, one small minced onion, two slices of diced and fried bacon, and sufficient crumbs to make the combination the proper consistency for stuffing. Season to taste, refill tomato shells, and top with more crumbs, this time buttered. Bake until soft but not broken. Serves four.

With Parsnips and Yams

Baked Parsnips and Pineapple: Wash and peel five young tender parsnips, cut in long thin slices, and boil until tender. Lay them in a large, flat, shallow pan. On top lay the slices from a 2 1/2 can of Hawaiian pineapple. To the syrup from the can add three-fourths cup sugar, and boil a minute, then pour over. Bake until all very tender, a golden brown and the syrup thickened. Serves five.

Baked Yams on the Half Shell: Select three large even sized sweet potatoes (yams, if possible) and bake until tender. Cut in halves lengthwise, and scoop out centers. Mash, add four tablespoons butter, four tablespoons heavy cream, four tablespoons brown sugar and the drained contents of an 8-ounce can of crushed pineapple. Season to taste with salt, and beat until fluffy. Refill cases, sprinkle more sugar on top, and dot with butter. Brown in oven. Serves six.

A Tasty Omelet

But vegetables are not the only foods to which a taste of tropical sunshine can be added by means of pineapple. The ubiquitous egg, too, can be made into a unique dish in the following:

Pineapple Omelet: Beat until thick four egg yolks with two teaspoons sugar and one-half teaspoon salt. Add four tablespoons syrup from an 8-ounce can of crushed Hawaiian pineapple. Fold in four stiffly-beaten egg whites. Melt a little butter in a skillet or omelet pan, pour in the mixture. Cook over a low flame until brown on bottom, then place in oven until the mixture is cooked on top. Spread with fruit jam made by cooking together the crushed pineapple, one tablespoon butter and two tablespoons sugar, fold over and onto a hot platter. Serve at once. Serves three.

Meats are made better, too, by means of pineapple, the enzyme bromelin of which helps to digest them. It is mighty good with ham.

Meats Made Digestible

Special Baked Ham: Brown two slices of smoked ham lightly on both sides, lay one piece in a baking dish, and spread sparingly with peanut butter. Cut in halves four slices of Hawaiian pineapple (half the contents of a No. 2 1/2 can) and cut two oranges in slices, leaving the peel on. Lay alternate slices of fruit on the ham, and sprinkle with one-half cup brown or maple sugar and one-fourth teaspoon clove. Top with the second slice of ham, and pour around one-half cup of the canned pineapple syrup and one-half cup cider (or a whole cup pineapple syrup, if you have no cider). Cover, and bake one hour in a 375° oven, removing cover at end to brown. Serves eight.

Stuffed Meat Loaf: Mix together three-fourths pound chopped beef, three-fourths pound chopped veal, one beaten egg, one-half cup milk, one teaspoon salt and a few grains of pepper. Line bottom and sides of greased loaf pan with mixture. Fill cavity with the stuffing described below, cover with rest of meat, lay strips of bacon on top, and bake in a 400° oven for about forty-five minutes. Serves eight.

Stuffing: Add to one and one-half cups dry crumbs, one-half teaspoon sage, one-half teaspoon thyme and salt to taste. Add two tablespoons melted butter, and mix in the contents of an 8-ounce can (one cup) of crushed Hawaiian pineapple.

of inflated spending and values and the great war. It is one of his tasks to bring its nation back to living within its income."

Dr. Lyle told how Hoover, as secretary of commerce, re-organized that department until it became the most efficient in Washington. This policy he has carried out in his administration as president. It does not make him popular with politicians.

"It is unthinkable," she declared, "that the people of the United States would swap horses in the middle of the stream. We haven't the time, the energy, the money nor the man to replace Herbert Hoover!"

Attention was called to Mrs. Estelle Hoerler of Oakland was visiting Mrs. O. Putman and Mrs. L. Miracle Monday.

Hugh A. Studdert Kennedy's book, "Hoover in 1932." Copies of which may be had in a campaign edition (paper cover) for fifty cents. Mr. Kennedy has given a generous per cent of the sale price of his book to the Women's Hoover for President Club. Marchal Hale says of the book: "The thinking people of our country will surely receive the sentiments of this book and realize more than ever what Hoover means in our present crisis. I would like to see a copy of 'Hoover in 1932' in every home in the United States."

Mrs. J. C. Ainsley is handling the sale of the books for the Campbell branch and would be very glad to supply anyone interested. Buy a copy and after reading it pass it on to some one else.

Producing is only half of it Selling profitably is the other half

IT TAKES weather, skill, hard work to produce at a profit the hay, livestock, fruit, alfalfa, eggs, butterfat and other products of your soil and labor.

It usually takes sound knowledge of the market and quick action to sell those products at greatest profit.

The telephone keeps you in touch with the market and gives you action at the moment you want it.

Good telephone service is as important as saddle, plow, harrow, binder or separator.

Romance Never Dies for This Pair

There's no reason why being grandparents should mean the end of romance, say Rev. W. A. Bosworth and his bride, the former Mrs. Josephine Wright, who were married in Wichita recently. The groom, who is ninety years old, is former national chaplain of the G. A. R., and former G. A. R. commander in Kansas. He is one of the most active veterans of the Civil war now living and never misses a national G. A. R. reunion. He also attends reunions of alumni at Marietta college, of which he is the oldest living alumnus.

out in the following program: selections, high school orchestra "America," Prayer, "Rock of Ages," D. H. Cramer, response 24th Psalm. The subject of the sermon was "Religious Influences in the Colonies." Solo "Recessional," Leonard Willis; Pageant, with Alberta Lantz, Leonard Willis, Irene Clau, Phillip Farley, Carol Clay and Thomas Farley, taking part. This was followed by "America the Beautiful," and the Benediction.

Members of the choir, Epworth League and others were in Colonial costumes, adding to the spirit of the meeting.

The program next Sunday night at the Methodist church is under the auspices of the Q. C. T. U. and will be the Grand Gold Medal contest arranged by Mrs. Catterton.
Those taking part in the con-

"Out of the Depths," Wm
Worker; "The Latch String,"

Betty Herman; "Unknown
Aletha Donahan; "Peace,"
Emma Goldman; Reddy's Country" Gene Bronson.

These contestants have each won three medals and come to us as mature artists. The program should be very good and everyone is cordially invited to attend.

A SPRING Tonic Tune-up is a good thing for your Ford — and we are experts at prescribing the right medicine and the right treatment for anything that can possibly go wrong in a Ford.

The Ford car has a steel constitution — but heavy carbon deposits, carburetor or distributor out of adjustment, worn-out oil or grease, or unevenly adjusted shock absorbers are enough to make any car feel low.

Let us make a thorough examination. There's no charge for that — and as we fill the prescription ourselves, its cost is very low.
